

Peter Griffiths, RN, BA, PhD

Peter Griffiths is Chair of Health Services Research at the University of Southampton, England and a Senior Investigator of the United Kingdom's National Institute for Health Research (NIHR) a title awarded in open competition to the UK's most highly regarded scientists in clinical and applied health and social care research. He is lead for Workforce and Health Systems in the National Institute for Health Research Applied Research and Collaboration (Wessex). His research focuses on the nursing workforce and factors influencing safe and effective nursing care delivery. He has published widely on safe nurse staffing and has worked closely with the National Institute for Health and Care Excellence and NHS Improvement on their work to develop guidance for safe nurse staffing levels and systems. He is also executive editor of the International Journal of Nursing Studies, the #1 ranked nursing journal by impact factor and most other metrics of journal performance.